Fifty-One Senior Men Approved Second Lieutenant Candidates ROTC Graduates Required To Undergo Basic Training

Fifty-one graduating University men have been approved by the Military Department as candidates for commissions as second lieutenants in the United States Army Officers' Reserve Corps, upon completion of two or three months of supplementary training at Fort Benning, Ga.

Rigby Loses Life in River

Kenneth Rigby, Missoula, was drowned Friday evening in the Missoula river when the canvas boat which he and Mark Jakobson, Carlyle, were rowing started to leak and overturned about a mile above the Van Buren street bridge. The two University students tried to swim to the shore about 15 feet away. Jakobson, seeing that Rigby was unable to hold his own in the swift current, tried to aid him by grabbing the sports coat which Rigby had tied loosely around his neck. Rigby slipped out of the coat. The last Jakobson saw of him, he was struggling to reach the shore.

Jakobson told Sheriff R. D. MacLean that as soon as he reached the shore, he went to the East Side Service Station where he summoned police officials. Firemen and volunteers searched the river but failed to find any trace of the body. Sheriff MacLean stated that he believed the search to be almost hopeless as the river is unusually high and swift at this time of the year.

Jakobson and Rigby had taken their boat to the railroad bridge below the Bonner dam, planning to come down the river to the Van Buren bridge. They had made the trip several times this spring, Jakobson told police officials. He also said that the canvas boat, constructed by Rigby, was rather old and leaky and that on previous trips they had been forced to pull to shore several times to empty the boat of water before continuing down the river.

Rigby was a pre-medics student, having entered the University in September of 1940.

University Grants Leave to Wendt

Rudolph Wendt, instructor in music, has applied for a leave of absence for the duration of the war, the president's office announced this week.

Mr. Wendt, a graduate of the Eastman School of Music at Rochester, one of the largest music conservatories in the country, has been an instructor of piano and harmony classes in the Music School for the last four years.

He is known for his ability as a pianist, and has helped with University publicity over the state. At present, he is visiting at his home before his induction into the armed forces.

Contrary to former years when candidates were granted commissions at graduate exercises, the men, who all have had four years of University ROTC training, must go to Fort Benning for further instruction before they receive their commissions.

Candidates, as released by the President's office are Carver Richardson Anderson, Livingston; Frank T. Bailey, Ekalaka; Rollin N. Baggenstoss, Charles F. Barnwell, Dallas W. Beaman, Warren Francis Bradeen, Eugene H. Clawson, all of Missoula; Glen E. Cox, Shelby; Robert John DeBoer, Manhattan; Kenneth William Drahos, Sumner, Wash.; John P. Dratz, Missoula; Jorgen H. Egeland, Reserve; William Coumts Andrew Enke, Western Springs, Ill.; Anthony Bernard Evanko, Seattle, Wash.; Thomas L. Finch, Spokane, Wash.; Karl Alvin Fiske, Outlook;

Robert J. Greene, Lewistown; Lester S. Hansen, Inverness; John Gordon Harker, Heron; Harry Burton Hesser, Whitehall; Gordon Gerald Holte, Lambert; Calvin Porter Hubbard, Polson; Carl Leonard Isaacson, Plentywood; Charles William Jones, Livingston; Leonard James Lambkin, Jr., Lincoln; Colin O. Melby Surveys Education In World After the Peace

Looking to the past for a survey of pre-war education and looking to the future for an indication of post-war education, President Ernest O. Melby sketched for graduating seniors the outline of the necessary objectives of higher education in its part in the construction of a peacetime world.

"The beginnings of higher education in this country were largely concerned with preparation for the learned professions," Dr. Melby said. "When the second world war broke out there were few areas of human effort not touched upon directly by institutions of higher learning. But catholic and inclusive as higher education had become, it had a very striking weakness as an instrument for social integration in a world of conflict."

President Melby emphasized the naviete and narrow scope of the viewpoint of graduates, and even professors of college education, pointing to the PhD's who clamored for isolation, a laissez faire economic system, high tariff barriers, and to other supposedly well informed university graduates who refused to listen to ominous warnings from European travelers. Of Pearl Harbor, the president

Riley Predicts Role of Education

With a theme of Education at War, and its role in the future, the Very Reverend Emmet J. Riley, president of Carroll College, Helena, presented the baccalaureate address to the graduating class of the University Sunday evening in the Student Union theater.

The face of the world is changing, digging much deeper into personal lives than can be seen, the speaker stated. It is altering geographical boundaries, economics, philosophy of mankind, racial attitudes, and standards of living.

"The United States will emerge from the war the most powerful nation in the world," Reverend Riley declared. "As such, it will be obliged to lead the other peoples of the world in a new peace. There will rest with us the obligation to put forth a maximum of effort to win the war, if we want the chance to win the peace that follows.

Schools have a place in this picture. They have the obligation of retaining worthwhile things of ages past and of assuring a finer period of culture afterward. They must assure the future peace by training the present generation to think in terms of moral law.

"Men who wage war are not the ones to frame the peace that follows. Christ, the Prince of Peace, and His doctrine, which is the cornerstone of democracy, must preside at the final peace table in the hearts and minds of men.

"Schools must assist democracy in every possible manner. They must assure the continuance of permanent cultural values and they must turn their facilities to the

Nineteen Degrees Presented to Seniors; Honorary Doctor of Music Awarded to Inch; Degrees Total 283

A grand total of 283 degrees, 260 bachelors, 22 masters and one honorary Doctor of Music, were awarded this afternoon to 258 members of the graduating senior class, to 22 graduates and to Dr. Herbert Inch, University student of the class of '24. Nineteen of the degrees were awarded in their absence to senior men, now in the service, who have completed the requirements for graduation. Degrees included those awarded to students graduating summer, fall and winter quarters.

Inch Awarded Music Degree

Dr. Herbert Reynolds Inch, University alumnus, was awarded the honorary degree of Doctor of Music today at Commencement exercises in recognition of his outstanding work in the field of music.

Dr. Inch attended the University from 1920-1922, and has since studied at Eastman School of Music at the University of Rochester, held a travelling fellowship in composition at the University of Rochester and Damrosch Fellowship at the American Academy in Rome, and taught at the Eastman School of Music. He is now professor and head of music theory at Hunter College, New York City. Dr. Inch has done much meritorious composition work.

immediate problem of winning the war."

Never before in the history of the United States has a greater percentage of the population been enrolled in a formal training program, Reverend Riley said. The role of colleges in training youth for officers is recognized by all branches of the armed services. High schools, higher institutions, trade schools, correspondence schools and adult classes are all producing trained men and women for war duties. This is education at war.

"Some day war planes will no longer roar over cities of the world. Then will come the bigger task at hand, that of healing the wounds of war: of men and nations," Reverend Riley said. "Education, preparation, planning, care-

It's A Man's World . . .

Traditionally graduation speakers mount the platform and address the current graduating class with a statement that graduation in reality represents only a commencement of widening horizons, or words to that effect. This year that statement is omitted. It would sound grimly foolish to a large percentage of the graduates.

This year even commencement sounds a trifle grim. The old maxim "every generation has its wars" is hard to swallow. War and commencement are too nearly synonymous.

The female contingent, perhaps, can see the brighter side of the picture. They do face opportunities and widening horizons. Fields formerly open only to a select group of women are opening up and embracing whole bevy of women workers. College girls, who are equipped to, can pick up nearly any tool they wish and wield it with the blessings of a grateful employer. Even the 99.7 per cent pure male professions of law and medicine are pushing the door open more than a crack to admit the weaker sex.

University programs are placing the accent on women's courses. But even the ladies aren't keen for a women's world.

College men, on the other hand, while not unwilling to take their places in the service, can't find much to shout about in their immediate future. They aren't necessarily fatalistically preparing for the death of a hero but they don't relish postponing their plans indefinitely. And who can blame them? After the war, what?

This year they are leaving more than a carefree youth behind when they receive their degrees, everyone grants that. No need to enumerate the plans that have been broken or postponed. And the bright day coming isn't much of a consolation today.

Without assuming the role of a Pollyanna we can say that there will be benefits. Thousands of youths are now being drilled and trained hard. No choice in the matter, the armed service doesn't offer a choice for its men must be physically fit. Benefit number one. Thousands of men are now taking rigorous courses of study in mathematics and science. No choice in the matter, army officers must be well prepared. Benefit number two. Thousands of fellows are now thrown in close relationships with other fellows of varied and different backgrounds and experience. No choice in the matter, the army doesn't consult personal preferences. Benefit number three.

Perhaps then this commencement isn't so much gloomier than those of years past. Perhaps the real commencement will come after the war when peace signs the degree and sets the boys on their own. Men with a broader education than that of any preceding generation. It would seem that as Dr. Melby told seniors today "tragic as is that war we should not be sorry for you for you face the greatest opportunities for service ever faced by graduates of this University." It's still a man's world.

Senior breakfasts, picnics, luncheons and dinners highlighted social activities in honor of the graduates, with the accent on breakfasts as Alpha Chi Omega, Alpha Phi, Delta Delta Delta, Delta Gamma, Kappa Alpha Theta, Kappa Kappa Gamma entertained their seniors.

Alpha Phi juniors honored their seniors with a dinner. Alpha Phi alumni gave a senior luncheon at the Florence.

Mrs. Rankin, Delta Delta Delta housemother, entertained the Tri Delta seniors with a dinner at the Florence. Tri Delta alumni gave an evening tea for the graduates. Delta Gamma senior picnic, May 22, honored the DG class of '43.

Sigma Kappa alumni gave the graduating SK's a dinner party in the Coffee Parlor May 25. The undergrads honored the seniors with a picnic at Greenough Park May 24.

Phi Delta Theta senior picnic was given in honor of the graduating PDT's at Sawmill Gulch and the regular senior breakfast was in the Palace at 9 o'clock yesterday morning.

Phi Sigma Kappa honored their seniors at Montana Power Park with a picnic last Thursday. Sunday senior mothers were invited for dinner.

Sigma Chi senior picnic was Saturday night at Greenough Park. The seniors at the Men's Co-op house were given a dinner in their honor Saturday.

said, "the military and naval commanders had been asleep. But their slumber was no deeper than that of the rest of the American people. Our principal goals in life were comfort and luxury. We had been living in a fool's paradise.

"We certainly must know that the world has become a little community in which no point on the globe is more than 60 hours away from Missoula, Mont., and that we literally live within the sound of each other's voices. Surely we must now know that the mere winning of the war will not save our democracy — that this democracy must work in the post-war world—that it must bring full employment and security to the masses of our people or they will discard it for other social patterns.

"Our colleges and universities must give their students a realistic appraisal of the world in which we live. The whole future of civilization depends on our willingness to grant the universality of our faith.

"Higher education," President Melby declared, "must give America a leadership devoted to human values, to realistic thinking, courageous action and actuated by the broadest human sympathies.

"We need this kind of education to win the war. But we need it to win the peace. Our colleges must say to their students, 'We will give you a diploma only when you have a realistic conception of the world in which we are living and some demonstrated capacity for living in that world.

"Our colleges must accept the responsibility for helping the student to meet these requirements."

Dr. Melby said that this responsibility must be faced by all departments of the university, not only the social science division.

He granted that this type of education is costly, saying that better facilities, abler faculties and wider contacts with the

Faculty Members Give Addresses To High Schools

President E. O. Melby and five other faculty members gave commencement addresses at high school graduations over the state last week. Dr. Melby spoke at Cutbank, May 26, at Deer Lodge, May 27, at Butte the morning of May 28, and at Anaconda that evening.

Dean Walter Anderson addressed the high schools at the following towns: Westby, May 25; Plentywood, May 26; Scobey, May 28; and Poplar, May 29.

communities are needed.

"The cost of education," President Melby declared, "even when that education is of highest quality, is a low price to pay for developing an empire like Montana."

Looking to an increased post-war enrollment, Dr. Melby predicted 11,000 young men and women in colleges in Montana within a few years after the war.

In closing, he said: "When you take your diploma in your hand today dedicate your life to the winning of a stable peace for mankind. Join us in building for Montana, the nation, and the world, a program of education which lights unquenchable fires in the souls of men which makes men proficient as builders of a better world.

"That kind of education will win the war. Only that kind of education can win the peace."

Prof. Ralph Y. McGinnis spoke at Fairview, May 26, and at Sidney, May 27. Prof. Rufus A. Coleman spoke at Eureka, May 28; Dean James L. C. Ford at Fort Benton, May 27; and Dr. G. D. Shallenberger at Whitehall, May 28.

For 25 consecutive commencements we have expressed our best wishes to the graduating class of the University of Montana. Dragstedt's

by wayne

It looks as though collegiate sports will be washed up for the duration after the intramural trackmeet this Saturday. Last Wednesday evening saw the softball finals with the Phi Delt putting on one of their famous last-minute rallies to take the cup. It was a great season all around. Sigma Nu went through the league undefeated, won their first championship playoff from the Phi Sigs handily enough and then faltered in the stretch to go down before the Phi Delt barrage.

Sigma Nu, with a squad composed mostly of freshmen, roared through the intramural basketball season and came through in front to take the cup. There was no touchball trophy given this year as the Navy Air Corps boys trimmed the Phi Delt in the finals.

In Grizzly varsity athletics it was a sad story, one of an out-classed school playing a skeleton squad against overpowering odds. Football season was bad. We won one and lost . . . but we won't go into that. In basketball, however, it was a different story. Everyone expected the Grizzlies to take a thorough trouncing. Capt. Chuck Burgess, (he really can handle a basketball although baseball seems to be a little out of his line.) and his scant squad turned the tables on nearly every opponent, winning 15 and losing 8. The state title grudgingly went to the Bobcats; their team was really hot this year.

Varsity track was cut out this spring, but three men, Scott, Kampfe and Bowman, entered the Pacific Coast Conference northern division meet at Seattle. Kampfe finished fourth in the 220-yard dash to take the only point for Montana. Lack of manpower and time to train may be blamed for our poor showing there.

Reviewing the year, it didn't go too bad after all, did it? With all of the boys in service, including our illustrious football captain, what could be the outcome?

WANTS NARANCHE RECOGNIZED

I saw a good idea in Ray Rocene's "Sports Jabs" the other day. Ray advocated the posthumous presentation of the Grizzly athletic trophy to Eso Naranche. There was a boy who really deserved it if anyone did.

Eso brought more recognition and publicity to this school through his thunderous fullbacking than he was ever given credit for. He played on the West Shrine football team his senior year and made some of the other colleges realize that Montana was on the sports map. Naranche won three letters in football and three letters in track while in school.

Last year the award went to Bill Jones for his unending work and sportsmanship in football and basketball. He served as captain of the grid squad and, for a time, held the basketball scoring record. In ful long-range thinking in calm deliberation will prevent another war. These must be our efforts.

"The United States will emerge the strongest, most respected nation on earth, but her load will carry heavy obligations. We must realize peace can be lost although the war is won; but peace is possible. In the eight point Atlantic charter of President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill, and in the peace program of the Pope, is outlined the most logical blueprint for permanent peace.

"These blueprints have the stamp of approval of governments, of church groups, and of leaders of the world. With education lies the responsibility of assuring their adoption by awakening people of all nations to their importance. Leaders of the world today are urging the return of religion in this hour of crisis. They realize there cannot be true morality without God. Renewed emphasis on religion in nations can be a factor in determine if we are to have permanent peace throughout the world."

Speaking to the graduating class, Reverend Riley told them that they are the ones who hold the future of America and of democracy in their hands.

"It is a solemn trust calling for a strong belief in God," he said. "Our forefathers realized that the freedom they wanted came from the Creator and not from any man or state. If there is no God, democracy is a myth. Thinking men are fearful today that as we lose faith in God, so we will lose our democ-

1941 Tom O'Donnell won the award and in 1940 it was Bob Thornally.

COLLEGE ATHLETICS SWAN SONG

Well, this looks like the last of college athletics for the duration. It makes a person rather sentimental to look back over the years of sports which all of us have enjoyed and realize that they must end for awhile. What we have learned and gained through the past seasons of athletics, whether or not we were actual competitors, will be carried on into our lives. The spirit of competition and fair play will dominate in Americans just as it has been so crudely suppressed in other nations. It's been swell giving my own slants on everything through this column, hard at times though since Dick Kern left for active duty with the Marines.

In another month, after this issue is printed, (I hope) read, (maybe) and forgotten, (inevitable), I'll go to join him leaving the Kaimin to the women. The sport page will probably die a natural death. We'll be back when this is all over and be in there pitching again. Until after the duration . . . luck!

Faculty Members Honored At Commencement Dinner

Three retiring University faculty members were honored at the annual commencement dinner Saturday evening in the Florentine Gardens, according to Miss Lucia Mirrieles, chairman of the faculty dinner committee. Those who are leaving are Freeman Daughters, professor of education, E. F. Carey, associate professor of mathematics and Mrs. F. K. Turner, New Hall social director.

Richard H. Jesse, dean of the faculty, acted as toastmaster at the banquet. President E. O. Melby was the main speaker of the evening and Ann Clements, Helena, senior class vice-president, spoke on behalf of the senior class.

Members of the dinner committee were Mary Rita Corbett, Butte; Ramah Gaston, Missoula; Ralph Gildroy, Billings, and Ann Lawton, Ennis.

The door committee was Homer Thompson, Three Forks; Mike

Stirratt and Ramah Gaston, Missoula; Ralph Gildroy and Betty Nadler, both of Billings.

The dinner was followed by a University band concert in the Oval, under the direction of Clarence Bell. John Lester, associate professor of music, led the traditional SOS on the steps of Main Hall before the AWS Lantern Parade which took place at 9:30 o'clock Saturday evening.

Among the 282 diplomas handed out today at University Commencement exercises, there were 19 that were not delivered in person to the rightful owners. They could not be, because the 19 diplomas belonged to men who have left the University for the Army, Navy and Marines. Today, when they should by right be in the long row of caps and gowns, they are scattered about the country in various training camps. However, by four years of achievement in this University those 19 men have left behind records which indicate that they are here in thought if not in presence.

The following members of the graduating class are in the armed forces and were unable to attend the commencement exercises: Eugene M. Barsness, Medicine Lake; Gerald R.
